

Workforce Development Specialist

Fay-Penn Economic Development Council is creating a new opportunity for a Workforce Development Specialist who will help us to expand our programs and services to better serve our community as we undertake the implementation of our new strategic plan. This highly collaborative position will entail research and analysis of the available regional workforce, business workforce needs, gaps between the two, and development of programs to close those gaps. The successful candidate will collaborate with internal staff to assist local businesses in meeting their workforce needs and community leaders to develop effective programs to address gaps between available workforce and business needs. If you have 3-5 years of business experience developing programs to meet business workforce needs and excellent interpersonal skills to interface and collaborate with community leaders, we welcome your application for this exciting new role. The full position description can be found at www.faypenn.org/careers . Please submit your letter of interest, resume, and salary history to tracik@faypenn.org no later than May 28, 2021.
